

Innovations in care and support

We know there are some great examples of person and community approaches that are making a big difference and having a positive impact on people's lives. TLAP is gathering examples of these innovations to develop an online resource for commissioners, providers and people with lived experience.

It is not our intention or our role to inspect or scrutinise but there does need to be some basic criteria sufficient to support inclusion on the online resource and to qualify approaches as 'innovative'. These are:

- practising co-production with people who use your services
- practising asset or strength based approaches
- delivering models of support that build community capacity
- tackling inequalities
- complying with all relevant regulation and legislation
- committing to collecting and using evidence of impact.

It will be assumed that in submitting your innovation, your organisation agrees with and meets the criteria above.

As well as adding examples of innovations to the online directory we will be promoting individual models of innovation in our regular e-bulletin.

Please complete your short summary with 100-150 words per section and return to info@tlap.org.uk to be added to the online directory.

1) Organisation (name and purpose?)

2) What is the problem this innovation solves?

3) Solution

4) Evidence base

5) Expected impact

6) Stage/spread (where it is/how much is there?)

7) What would councils/health organisations/local areas need to do or have in place to enable it to develop?

8) What would kill it?

9) Where to go for more information
