Are you interested in helping with a research study?

Researchers from King's College London want to talk to people who employ Personal Assistants (direct care workers) about their experiences during the Covid-19 pandemic.

What does this involve?

- ❖ We will discuss the study and any questions you may have.
- ❖ If you decide to take part we will arrange a 45-minute phone or video call where a researcher will ask about your experiences during the Covid-19 pandemic as someone who employs Personal Assistants. This will be confidential.
- ❖ You will receive a £20 voucher for your time and help.
